Study reveals a startling ‘Native Truth’

A study designed to find out the social imprint of modern-day Native Americans and ways to improve upon that exposure has revealed some startling truths. Authors of the “Reclaiming Native Truth Study” state in their 76-page findings report, “For the first time ever, we know what different groups of Americans – across socioeconomic, racial, geographic, gender, and generational cohorts – think (and don’t know) about Native Americans and Native issues. We have learned how biases keep contemporary Native Americans invisible and/or affixed to the past and are holding back Native Americans from achieving political, economic, and social equality, as well as accurate and respectful representation.”

For the study, a total of 28 focus groups, totaling 200 people, were held across the country in locations from Los Angeles, Calif. to Tahlequah, Okla.

Topics covered ranged from understanding of tribal sovereignty to Native American sports mascots. According to the study, tribal sovereignty is one of those issues that is not well understood at all by the general public. “Even after gaining a better understanding of the term, few people actually believe tribes are sovereign – or should be sovereign – and cannot conceptualize more than 600 sovereign nations across the United States. While people support sovereignty around land use, they find it difficult to accept that tribes have a different set of laws on reservations. People who oppose the sovereignty of Native American tribes often think that the rights of Native Americans harm the rights of non-Native people.”

Education, or the lack thereof, on Native issues and Native Americans in general is a factor that was researched in the study. “A study of schools in 2011-2012 found that nearly 87 percent of state history standards failed to cover Native American history in a post-1900 context and that 27 states did not specifically name any individual Native Americans in their standards at all,” the study states. “People interviewed said that they feel that what they learned – or are teaching – in school about Native culture is inaccurate, and they strongly supported the need for curriculum change.”

The #NoDAPL Movement surrounding the protests and encampment at the Standing Rock Sioux reservation in North Dakota raised awareness of Native Americans in the public eye according to the study which states, “The movement at Standing Rock has significantly undermined the systemic erasure of Native peoples from the dominant American narrative. At a time when most Americans continued to believe that Native Americans and tribal nations no longer exist in the United States, Native Americans were presented with a movement that forced a new conversation around values, identity, and our collective connection to the Earth around us and the lands we live on.”

In the summary, the study states, “A 78 percent majority started the survey saying they are interested in learning more about Native American cultures. Sixty-three (63) percent agree that Native American tribes should have full legal authority on their own lands. Sixty-seven (67) percent support the Indian Child Welfare Act. Seventy-eight (78) percent believe it is important to feature more stories about Native Americans on TV, in movies and in other entertainment.”

Other key findings included:
• 71 percent support expanding national monuments to protect sacred land(s)
• 67 percent support “ensuring that Native peoples have the final say on matters that affect their resources”
• 74 percent support increased funding for health care and poverty reduction among Native Americans
• 67 percent supports the United States upholding treaty obligations
• 72 percent support “significant changes” to school curriculums on Native Americans

The “Reclaiming Native Truth” study was directed in a joint effort by the First Nations Development Institute and Echo Hawk Consulting. The project team included: Echo Hawk Consulting – Lauren Cordova (Taos Pueblo/Shoshone-Bannock), project assistant; Crystal Echo Hawk (Pawnee), president and chief executive officer, co-project leader; Jodi Gillette (Hunkpapa Lakota/Oglala Lakota), advisor; Janie Simms Hipp (Chickasaw), advisor; Native Solutions: Shirley LaCourse Jamarillo (Oglala Lakota/Yakama/Umatilla/Oneida), project manager; Mary Kathryn Nagle (Cherokee), advisor, Pipestem Law: Wilson Pipestem (Otoe-Missouria), attorney and government relations, Pipestem Law: Ryan Red Corn (Osage), advisor. Red Hand Media: Betsy Theobald Richards (Cherokee), advisor. The Opportunity Agenda: First Nations Development Institute – Randy Blauvelt, senior communications officer; Alice Botkin, development officer; Mary K. Bowannie (Zuni/Cochiti), communications officer; Stephanie Cote (Anishinaabe), program assistant; Dr. Sarah Dewees, project director and senior director of research, policy, and asset-building programs; Dr. Raymond Foxworth (Navajo), vice president of grant-making, development, and communications; Jackie Francke (Navajo), vice president of programs and administration; Benjamin Marks, senior research officer; Marian Quintanl, writer; Tom Reed, finance officer; Yadira Rivera, grants and program assistant; Michael E. Roberts (Tlingit), president and chief executive officer; and Patria “Ime” Salazar (Taos Pueblo/Santa Ana Pueblo), program officer.

New season, new team...let them play

SCOTT MCKIE B.P.
ONE FEATHER STAFF

The last time we saw the Cherokee Braves football team in action, they were hoisting a 1A state championship trophy in the air following a rainy, sleet, snowy game against North Duplin. That was a great day in Cherokee sports. That was a day that many of us will never forget. It was simply awesome to watch a team come together like that and, albeit it was cold for many, it warmed our hearts to see how a simple game brought a community together.

Well, that was then. This is now. That 2017 team has hoisted their trophy, received their rings, and some have graduated and are playing at the next level. They are forever etched in Cherokee High School sports history as they should be.

Now, it is almost time for the 2018 team to take the field and enjoy their time playing.

Singer Darius Rucker, a huge sports fan, once said, “There’s two times of year for me: football season and waiting for football season.”

I, for one, can relate.

This year’s Braves campaign starts at home at Ray Kinsland Stadium on Friday, Aug. 17 against North Buncombe. Cherokee’s 36-10 win over the Black Hawks last season was how they got their championship campaign started, and Braves’ fans are hoping for a repeat performance.

While many of the top performers from last year’s championship team are gone, there will be some familiar faces out there who will light up the field – Isaiah, Cade, Blake, Bobby, etc. This is not a decimated team. This is not a rebuilding year. The accomplishments of this team will be predicated on how well they gel as a team.

The late Casey Stengel, legendary New York Yankee manager, once said, “Finding good players is easy. Getting them to play as a team is another story.”

There’s a long-standing statement in football that offense wins games, defense wins championships. I don’t disagree with that as defense is more important than offense in my humble opinion, but I’d like to change that statement to say offense and defense wins games, teamwork wins championships.

As fans, one thing we shouldn’t do is compare last year’s team to this year’s team. Even if this year’s squad goes undefeated and completes a back-to-back state championship season, they still won’t be last year’s team. That’s not to say they won’t be as good or maybe better, who knows at this point? But, teams are different from year-to-year, and we have to let them develop and play their games.

At the end of the day, we watch football because we love the game and we love the atmosphere. So, whether this year’s Braves team goes 15-0 and wins more rings or they go 0-12 and we’re sitting at home in early December, at least we got to watch some football and experience Friday Night Lights for another season and that can’t be bad no matter how you cut it.

Go Braves!
Larry Burton Spence Sr. (U.S. Navy retired)

Larry Burton Spence Sr. enlisted in the United States Navy on May 1, 1958 and went to San Diego, Calif. where, in boot camp, he became a “chow runner” for the company. He was sent to “Electrical A School” for three months up in the Great Lakes area for electrical theory training. He said that the school was tough with study in mathematics. After electrical training, he returned to California. This time, it was Alameda, to get his ship assignment, the USS Hancock, a Navy aircraft carrier. He made a couple of cruises on this ship. He saw Hong Kong, the Philippines, and Japan. He spent approximately three years on the Hancock before returning to the Great Lakes for additional training in 1962, “Electrical B School” where he learned basic electrical theory.

Spence said that when John F. Kennedy took office, there was an emphasis on exercise in the military, more so than normal. So, in addition to sitting in classes all day to learn electrical duties, the Navy also had a rigorous physical fitness program for him to “enjoy.”

When he completed B School, Spence moved to Charleston, SC for his next assignment. He boarded the USS Gilmore. He spent three years in “under-way training,” traveling up and down the east coast onboard and to the Caribbean. The USS Gilmore was constructed as a submarine tender just before World War II and, during the Vietnam War continued servicing and repairing submarines. Then, in 1965, he went to Panama City, Fla., for shore duty and more training. “That was small boats, mine warfare lab.”

In 1967, Spence went to New Orleans to serve on a ship that made repairs to small craft going to Vietnam. He shipped out to Vietnam, serving there for a year (the ship left New Orleans in April 1968 and returned in April of 1969, the Navy counts the travel time in with the Vietnam tour of duty). The ship was close enough to one Navy shore battle that Larry and his crew took fire. “We were anchored next to Dong Tan, Vietnam. They (Navy flotilla) was dropping mortars in on Dong Tan.”

After Vietnam, he came back to the states for additional training. While stateside, Spence married his wife Carol and a honeymoon followed.

She said, “It was a ‘moon’ holiday. It was 1969 when the men first walked on the moon, and the Navy granted an extra day of liberty to commemorate the occasion. So, we went to Reno, Nev. and got married.”

Spence began his service on the USS Coral Sea, an aircraft carrier, which carried him back to Vietnam to be a part of the ship’s mission to provide air support to the troops in Vietnam. During his time on the carrier, he had to be in top physical condition. He talked about changing the bearings on motors on the ship. “We would take the end bells off, pull the rotors out, then put them on our shoulders, carry them forward, sometimes in a run, where we had the heat lamps and stuff, heat the bearing up for that motor, pull the bearings off, put new ones on, carry it back to the motor, and slap the end bells back together. That was in boiler rooms, engine rooms, and switchboard rooms, carrying heavy equipment up and down metal staircases.”

Spence chuckled, “I was in real good shape.”

When he finished his tour with the USS Coral Sea, Spence was assigned to the “mothball fleet” in Viejo, Calif., for two years. He and the sailors there maintained the ships that were in storage, keeping the marine growth off the ships and taking preventative measures against salt water damage and rust. After that, he served on the USS Hector, a repair ship for other ships, and remained there until his retirement in 1977 at the rank of E-6 (Petty Officer, 1st Class). During his career, he served on several Navy vessels. The USS Sphinx was a ship originally built as a landing ship for service in the Second World War. It was later converted to be used as a repair ship for landing ships.

Spence recalls an incident on the USS Sphinx, during a ship out to Vietnam. “When we hit the ocean, we lost both main engines. Oh goody. We ended up getting towed into Panama and getting fixed there at the Panama Canal. We went through the canal. That was interesting.”

He said that one of the benefits of service during that time is that he was able to visit places around the world and, when not on active duty, could see and learn about different cultures.

At one point, Spence served a stint as a Shore Patrol Officer and was asked to pick up what was supposed to be an erratic and tough prisoner from the Air Force. Convinced he would be dealing with a potentially dangerous individual, he checked out a pistol for his protection. Arriving with the “paddy wagon”, the prisoner meekly came out and quietly surrendered to him. Spence said he had to laugh because he had been worried and expected the worst, and what he got was just the opposite.

While he served, his wife Carol would show their baby daughter a picture of Larry in his “blues”, one of his uniforms in the Navy, so that she would be able to recognize and not be afraid of him when he returned. When Spence returned, and Carol brought the six-month-old to meet him as he got off the ship, Larry was wearing his “whites”, and the little girl did not recognize him. It was only when they got home, and he changed into his “blues” that his young daughter welcomed her daddy home.

During Spence’s first tour with the USS Coral Sea, Carol was at home working in a VA hospital and taking care of the home. “I just did what needed to be done. I learned how. That was all you could do was just learn how.”

Spence said he gained much from serving in the Navy. “I enjoyed the military. It was interesting, and it set me up pretty much. When I got out of the military, I went to junior college to study electronics, air conditioning, and welding under the GI Bill, which led to a 58-year career as an electrician. I used the trade that the Navy gave me.”

Spence is 77-years-old and has been married to Carol for 49 years. Larry Spence’s son, Larry Jr., has been a magistrate in Bryson City for over seven years. His daughter is CNA-2 for home health in the Andrews-Marble area. He has several grandchildren that live in the surrounding western counties. Larry and Carol have attended Whittier Church of God for the past 20 years. During his years of service, both Larry and Carol made many friends across the country, with many of whom they keep in touch. Similarly, family members are spread out over the nation.

Larry Sr. is a member of the Bryson City Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9281 and the American Legion Steve Youngdeer Post 143 in Cherokee. He was awarded the following decorations, medals, and badges: Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, Vietnam Gallantry Cross, Meritorious Unit Commendation, Combat Action Ribbon, National Defense Service Medal, and the Good Conduct Medal (x4).
F
tive Cherokee Boys Club member who are 18 years of age or older will be elected to serve on the Boys Club Board of Directors.
As many as are nominated may run in the election, and the five receiving the highest number of votes will be elected. They will serve from Oct. 1, 2018 – Sept. 30, 2020. There is no limit to the number of times a Board member may serve as long as they are re-elected.

Following are the nominees for this year’s

Walker, and June Wolfe.

The election will be held on Thursday, Aug.
23 (fourth Thursday in August) in the Club lobby with the polls being open from 7am – 4pm. All voters must present a Club membership card. If they do not have a membership card, they may get a free card at the Club Information Desk. Any EBCI tribal member or a current or former employee of the Cherokee Boys Club is eligible for Club membership.
Each member will be given one ballot and may vote for five Board members. If a ballot has over five names market, the ballot will not be counted. The five candidates receiving the most votes will be named Board members. In the case two or more candidates tie for the number-five position, a run-off election will be held on Thursday, Sept. 6 between the tied candidates at the same time and place.

The Student Representative election will be held at Cherokee High School on a date to be approved by school officials. Nominations will be submitted from the Automotive Technology

The five Board memers elected in the election, the student elected in the student election, and the two outside business people appointed by the Board must be approved by Tribal Council at Council’s September meeting.

The newly-elected
Board will be on Friday, Sept. 7 at 8:30am and select two business people to serve on the Board and select from the Board itself a president, vice-president, secretary, and assistant secretary. The Board will select an Advisory Committee to serve a two-year term.

The previous Board and officers will continue to serve until Sept. 30, 2018.
The new Board does not begin serving until Oct. 1, 2018. However, the new Board is given authority to act on the above-mentioned actions. Any Board member who misses three consecutive meetings without calling the president and getting excused will be removed from office and replaced by a special election. The new Board will be installed and the outgoing Board will be recognized at a breakfast on Monday, Oct. 1.

The 9th Annual Rooted in the Mountains: Valuing Our Common Ground Symposium will be returning this fall at Western Carolina University. This year’s theme is “Heart Health – Women’s Health: Rooted in Culture”. This two-day symposium integrates Appalachian and Native American traditional knowledge, health, language, and environmental issues and will take place on Thursday, Sept. 27 and Friday, Sept. 28 on the Western Carolina University campus in the Blue Ridge Conference Room.

This year, Western Carolina University’s Culturally Based Native Health Program has collaborated with the Native Controlling Hypertension and Risk through Technology and the American Indian and Alaska Native Diabetes Translation Research Southeast Satellite Center. Together, they will bring together an interesting group of local, regional, and national speakers to discuss theme-related topics.

Dr. Lisa Lefler, director of the Culturally Based Native Health Program, shares, “This symposium is a valuable opportunity to learn from Native speakers and those who understand Traditional Knowledge. This annual event highlights the importance of Traditional Knowledge’s integration with health and environmental issues. For the Cherokee, tohi’ (health) is a central concept that impacts every part of our lives. Come listen and learn with us!”

Confirmed speakers include: Katsi Cook, a mother, mid-wife, women’s health advocate and activist for environmental restoration in her Mohawk Nation of Akwesasne, will be the keynote speaker. Various EBCI tribal members and Cherokee Nation citizens will be speaking on related topics across the two days including: Onita Bush, Tom Belt, TJ Holland, Vickie Bradley, Billie Jo Rich, Blythe Winchester, and Carmen Nations. Other speakers include Jim Howard, retired clinician and faculty from George Washington University, who will discuss the results from the Strong Heart Study, the largest, longest longitudinal study of cardiovascular disease and its risk factors among Native Americans. Jeff Proulx, a Senior Researcher Associate at Oregon Health and Science University, will share his work developing a mindfulness program for stress reduction with Native American communities.

Registration is $75.00, with students and tribal elders admitted free.

WCU ALUMNI PROFILE

Rebecca Griffith is a member of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians from Cullowhee, NC. She is a recent 2018 graduate of Western Carolina University who majored in Hospitality Tourism Management. Rebecca is now continuing her education even further by pursuing a Master’s degree in Business Administration-Leadership at Liberty University. Her dream job would be to own her own business when the time is right.
The Jones-Bowman Leadership Award Program Fellows traveled to Black Mountain recently to conduct a presentation on the history of the Cherokee to a group of students attending a retreat at the YMCA Blue Ridge Assembly. Participating in this retreat as ambassadors of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, young leaders in the Jones-Bowman program and college students provided a powerful message to their audience.

The Sister Cities of Durham program at Blue Ridge is called Bridges 2018. They have six Sister Cities in the world and three of them, Kostroma, Russia; Durham, England; and Durham, North Carolina met to explore their different pasts, present, and futures. Ten 11th and 12th graders from each city, 30 students combined, will be learning about each other and what that means for them as newly formed friends. Sister Cities is an ongoing forever relationship with the Sister Cities abroad and have been Sister Cities to each other in a triangle for more than 30 years.

Dot Borden, of the Bridges 2018 program, shared, “It is important that we understand one another to go forward more compassionately and lovingly into the future as a group when they return home. That is where your students come in. I think it is great that they are young and will be able to speak with truth and hope for both of our group’s common future together in our world.”

Alicia Jacobs, Jones-Bowman leadership specialist, said, “Providing the Fellows with the opportunity to share the rich culture of the Cherokee with other students strengthens their public speaking skills along with giving them the platform to share their cultural values. I am extremely proud of the fellows and how they represent the tribe, the Jones-Bowman Leadership Award Program and the Ray Kinsland Leadership Institute.”

Jones-Bowman officials noted, “Jones-Bowman Fellows did an outstanding job preparing for this presentation as they included the history of the Cherokee, forced removal, Qualla Boundary, cultural values, and progressed into their role as young leaders and ambassadors of the Eastern Band of Cherokee today. The thirty plus students were inquisitive asking thoughtful questions. The Fellows brought each student a corn bead necklace and postcard that included the Cherokee Core Values.”

Activities for the Jones-Bowman Leadership Award program are made possible through funding from the Cherokee Preservation Foundation for the Ray Kinsland Leadership Institute, a department of the Cherokee Boys Club.

Cherokee Youth Council has a busy summer

This summer has been an extremely busy time for the Cherokee Youth Council. The members have had the opportunity to meet and interact with native youth from all over the country, and they have been able to learn about several other indigenous cultures, as well as, share some of the Cherokee culture with others.

Nine of the Youth Council members participated in the annual National UNITY Conference, which was held in San Diego, Calif. this year on July 4-9. This conference is the largest gathering of native youth in the world, and there were over 140 tribes represented with close to 2,500 participants. The members attended workshops, trainings, and team building events where they learned about other communities and their issues, creative problem solving, youth empowerment, and resiliency.

When asked about his first UNITY Conference, CYC member Lucian Davis said, “I loved my first UNITY Conference! We learned so much and met so many amazing people. It was empowering to see so many native youth proud to be themselves and to see that now is the time that we stand up for who we are and that as youth we are the future of our Tribe.”

When they returned from UNITY, the Cherokee Youth Council hosted the Cherokee Nation Youth Council from Tahlequah, Okla. on July 10-11. The youth from Cherokee Nation visited cultural sites at Kituwah and Clingman’s Dome, took in tours of the Museum of the Cherokee Indian and Oconaluftee Indian Village, and the two Youth Councils shared lunch at Granny’s Kitchen and attended “Unto These Hills” outdoor drama together. They also participated in a collaborative project at Tsali Manor where they did rock painting with the elders.

Six of the Cherokee Youth Council members participated in the annual cultural exchange outside of Santa Fe, NM with the Pueblo de San Ildefonso community on July 23-27. This is a small indigenous community consisting of approximately 850 tribal members who welcomed the Youth Council members literally into their homes to share their dances, cooking, and community celebrations with the group.

The girls in the group were able to participate in traditional cooking with members of the San Ildefonso Youth Council and the boys were able to observe their boys’ traditional dances and had a great discussion about traditional life and their cultural values with the boys and group leaders from the community. They were able to learn about dry farming techniques from a tribal elder and council member as they toured their community garden facility.

Cherokee Youth Council members were also able to participate in the San Ildefonso community celebration called Santiago Day where they had a variety of booths set up, played games, and did a traditional give away where items such as pottery, clothes, food, and baskets were thrown from rooftops to the crowd below. The group also visited area sites like Sandia Peak and Bandelier National Monument, which is a sacred site of the Pueblo people. On the last night in San Ildefonso, the group attended a Youth Cultural Night where both Youth Councils performed traditional dances in front of their community which was followed by a traditional meal.

When asked about what the cultural exchange meant to her, CYC member Amaya Hicks said, “Many kids don’t get this opportunity during their lifetime to do this, so I am very grateful for this chance to learn more about a different culture. All of the activities we did were super fun, we learned a lot, and I am very blessed to have had the opportunity.”

The Cherokee Youth Council is a culturally-based leadership program, aimed at empowering the youth of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians for the betterment of our tribe and community. The Youth Council is a program of the Ray Kinsland Leadership Institute housed at the Cherokee Boys Club. Our program is supported by the Cherokee Preservation Foundation.

OBITUARIES

Billie Jean “Cookie” Kanott Wolfe

Billie Jean “Cookie” Kanott Wolfe, 67, of Cherokee, passed away Monday, Aug. 6, 2018 at the Cherokee Hospital with her family and friends by her side.

Born June 23, 1951 in Cherokee to the late William H. Kanott and Naomi Jackson Kanott, she was a member of the Acquoni Chapel Baptist Church.

Cookie is survived by her husband of 50 years, Noah Wolfe; her children, Keith Wolfe of the home, David Wolfe (wife Susie) of Cherokee, JL Wolfe (wife Lindy) of St. Louis, Mo., and John Martin who she thought of as a son; grandchildren, Jennifer Martens (husband Matt), Jeremy Wolfe, Sweetpea Wolfe, and Brady Kane.

AWARDEE: Arena Hall-Miller, Harrah’s Cherokee Valley River Casino housekeeping supervisor and resident of Blairsville, Ga., is one of three recipients chosen from across the Caesars brand for the Caesars Clean the World Employee Award. The award recognizes employees who are passionate about Caesars’ environmental commitments, specifically CODEGREEN and the Clean the World Program which is a non-profit organization whose goal is to recycle unused hygiene products from hospitality destinations. Harrah’s Cherokee Casinos participate by collecting unused complimentary soap and shampoo after check-out. “Arena is our property advocate for the Clean the World campaign and through her efforts we’ve consistently finished in the top 10 of health care contributions that benefit those around the world who are less fortunate,” said Brian Skaggs, executive housekeeper. “She’s consistently been a role model and has proven herself to be a tremendous asset to the Housekeeping Department at Harrah’s Cherokee Valley River and the company as a whole.”

ROBERT JUMPER
ONE FEATHER EDITOR

We are all wondering what happened to our world. On a planet that is more connected than ever before, we deal daily with the aftermath of actions taken because members of our society feel isolated, segregated, and alone. Isolation is a breeding ground for socio-pathic behavior, addiction, and criminal activity.

We are preoccupied with personal space, and the definition of that personal space has evolved into whether you are close enough to me to read what is displayed on my smartphone. Instead of families sitting down to meals together to talk about their lives and catching up on events of the day, we are sitting silently at tables with the soft glow of the smartphone reflecting on our faces - all senses focused on the messages it delivers (if we even gather together for a meal at all).

It is unusual to participate in a face-to-face meeting with anyone for any reason without the interruption of a beep, buzz, or hum of a digital device going off. And, when our smartphones sound the alarm, our brain has been conditioned to respond. I have seen friends and acquaintances get physically agitated when not able to immediately respond to the commanding call of a smartphone. It is like an itch that they can’t scratch. The in-person conversation becomes secondary, and they will be distracted from our talk until they can see what their smartphone wanted.

During a conversation, visual cues are just as important as the speech that we use. We familiarize ourselves with each other through all five senses. When we limit our interaction to just text or voice (or pre-recorded video), we have isolated ourselves from the experience of personal contact. As lifelike as smart and digital technology has become, it cannot create or maintain a true relationship. Emojis are a digital product of the need to communicate feelings in addition to thoughts.

We, as a society, bear the responsibility for the change we want. “Want” has become “need” in this environment of rising crime rates, drug addiction, and medical crisis born from the excessive lifestyles that isolation grows. Rehab centers, Jenny Craig, AA, prison, and other programs are Band-Aids toward the real goal, which is reinventing a society where we care about people beyond a social media “like.”

Caring for people requires contact and intimacy. I care about the world, but not as much as I care about my community. I care about the community, but not as much as I care about my friends. I care about my friends, but not as much and not in the same way as I care about my family. Even in families, isolation occurs. How many times are we greeted with news of a mass killing at a school or church, and the media goes to the killer’s family and friends to hear that they are “shocked and horrified” that the killer has done such a thing because they saw him as a “good, quiet kid who never bothered anybody”? Creating and maintaining relationships takes time and effort, even with family members. Due to an apathetic mentality, we become a part of creating an environment that breeds not only more apathy but, eventually, hatred.

As Cherokees and “mountain people,” we tend to be “set in our ways.” If we have done things a certain way for a long time or it is a passed-down tradition, we are not inclined to do it a different way. We are used to having community functions on the Boundry. From Stomp to Indian Dinner Fundraiser to Cherokee Indian Fair, we’ve created ways to be an intimate part of the community. But, many of our young people are not getting the family leadership required to engage them in a personal way. I think Cherokee does a better job than most areas, but I am. In my neighborhood, I tend to keep to myself. I only interact with neighbors as much as is necessary to deal with a property issue, or to see EDITORIAL next page.
LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Wants sports gaming

The estimate given in the One Feather was $250,000,000. Not a small chunk of change by any measure. Enormous as that number seems, would you believe that, that number, was just a small fraction of the money that exchanged hands in the sports betting industry last year?

Sports betting produces revenue in the billions each year. Then, with that information and a business partner (Harrah’s) that already has years of experience in this industry. Not counting that sports betting is already covered in the compact we have with the state under Class III gaming. Wouldn’t it make perfect sense to ask, “What in the world are we waiting for?”

We’ve already invested upwards of a billion dollars into our gaming industry. Why then, when opportunity arises that could produce a very nice return on our investments, do we not jump to capitalize on this?

Get on the internet. Check the numbers. In the gaming industry, sports betting might not be the goose that laid the golden egg, but it could very well be one of the eggs.

Harold R. Rattler
Birdtown Community

Editor’s note: The One Feather published an article in the June 26 edition titled “Tribal gaming officials break ground on new Convention Center”. While the figure used in this letter to the editor is correct in the amount, the author of the letter incorrectly infers that the number was stated as a total estimate of cost for the project. The amount reported was actually about a line of credit for the project. An excerpt from the article reads as follows: “Tribal Council approved Ord. No. 567 (2016) last August that gave TCGE (Tribal Casino Gaming Enterprise) authority to enter into the Fifth Amended and Restated Loan Agreement with Wells Fargo Bank for the funding of the project including a $250,000,000 delayed draw term loan facility for the construction of the expansion.”

EDITORIAL: Please don’t stand so close to me, from page 18

I give a quick greeting. I have lived in my neighborhood for over 30 years. Creating and maintaining a personal relationship can be costly and messy. More than clicking a button, true friendships and relationships don’t end with an electronic command to “unfriend.” There might be painful words and situations. Hateful or pleading words and actions may take place. Time and effort are required to build a neighborhood or community. Giving away a certain amount of self is required to have a true relationship.

Social media has a place in current society, but I am not sure that we intended it to take the place of true, personal relationship. Many of my coworkers have more interaction with their fellow workers than they have with some of their family members at home. I maintain a lifeline for a relationship with some of my family members via text or a Facebook page because that is the only place I see them or communicate with them. And, I am a middle-aged man. If you are a parent or grandparent, take special note the next time you are spending time with family at how much time those around you are checking their smartphones. Watch the ones who stand to the side of a group in conversation, with head bowed to stare at a small screen and fingers flying across a keyboard screen, not engaging in the flesh and blood people within their personal space.

The Digital Age has brought us many advances. We do things faster. We are more informed. But, I think one of the unexpected drawbacks and declines is that the technology has isolated many of us to the point of being unhealthy psychologically. We make friends with images on a screen with no idea as to whether the person we are communicating with is really who they say they are, or if they are real people at all. Artificial Intelligence software has gotten to the level of development that you may only be building a relationship with a machine. That is one of the reasons that digital relationships isolate people.

We can’t allow smart technology to continue to replace true relationship and personal, physical interaction. We must reverse the course we have set ourselves on regarding technology being the primary way we relate to each other. In the “old days,” people looked for an opportunity to commune. For many, it was church gatherings, where, at least once a week, you came together and personally interacted with other members of your community. Today, church attendance is on the decline, and the memberships are mostly middle-aged (or older) people. The future of the church, the children, and the youth are some of the least attending age groups.

Find ways for you and your family to engage in community functions together. Turn off your phones during meals and intentionally have family time that does not include using digital technology. Make it a point to be active in your community clubs, social and craft groups. Volunteer at a nursing home or a Hospice. If you are an animal lover, contribute time to a shelter or farm because there will be others there with a similar interest. For me, a simple start is getting out of my house and having a conversation with my next-door neighbor. The final answer to the drug epidemics, crime waves, and mental illness are not Narcan, rehabs, prisons, and institutions. All those tools are needed, but they are for after-the-fact. They are the Band-Aide after the damage has been done. All of us must change our culture together, so the conditions that breed the negative behavior are reduced or no longer exist.

CHEROKEE VETERANS:
We want to share your stories.
The Cherokee One Feather would like to help you tell your stories through a column we call the “Veterans’ Corner”. If you or your family members would like to help you tell the Cherokee community what it was like for you while serving your community and nation, or what it has been like being a veteran, we would like to give you a forum to share your memories with the readers of the Cherokee One Feather. You don’t have to be a writer. If you prefer to set up an appointment with our staff to share your moments, we will document, write, and publish your thoughts. You may send written stories to robjdepump@nc-cherokee.com and/or call 828-359-6482 to schedule a time for us to interview you. You may also stop by the One Feather offices at the Ginger Lynn Welch Building in Cherokee.

Thank you for your service and love for your community.
