Council approves purchase of historic land in Franklin

A culturally significant resource will be turned over to tribal control as Tribal Council approved the purchase during Budget Council on Tuesday, Sept. 4 of land near Franklin containing soapstone boulders with petroglyphs. For the appraised price of $55,120, the Council passed a resolution authorizing the purchase, which would protect the carved images into a rock, similar to Judaculla Rock near Sylva.

Yellowhill Rep. Tom Wahnetah supported the purchase. He said, “These stones have significant connections to Judaculla Rock. They’re all connected.”

Tribal Historic Preservation Officer Russ Townsend told the Council, “Turkey Track Rock would be a great purchase for the Tribe.” The property is about five and a half acres. “I think it’s good that we take the opportunity to purchase these and remove them from private hands and put them in the public trust where we can take care of them.”

“The history of the site dates back more than 5,000 years. It was under Cherokee control until about 1819 when it was ceded by treaty.” Townsend said. The petroglyphs on the site are part of a chain of similar sites stretching from Black Mountain to Brasstown near Murphy, sites that include Judaculla Rock near Sylva.

“Is there anybody who can read the petroglyphs,” asked Painttown Rep. Tommye Saunooke.

Townsend answered, “Nobody that we know of for certain. But, there are lots of theories about what they mean, a lot of theories about maps, a lot of theories about specific stories. There are some that have repeat symbols from Judaculla on them. I don’t think you could read them like you could a book, but they certainly give you some very strong ideas about what they may mean.”

Rep. Saunooke hoped that schools would set up tours for their students. “This would be a great opportunity for the children to see.”

Townsend said what differentiates Turkey Track from Judaculla is that Turkey Track is carved on several smaller boulders as opposed to one boulder. “Turkey Track has some of the same kinds of inscriptions as on Judaculla.”

Martha Solesbee, the owner of the property, has had it in her family for four generations, more than 100 years.

Townsend said she wanted to keep the site protected from developers or vandals, “It was her hope it would go to the Tribe or some archaeological conservancy. The asking price demonstrates good intentions on her part. We’re very grateful that she and her family have protected this resource.”

Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed said the site is certainly historically significant. “I wanted to thank (Townsend) and Bill Taylor (governmental affairs liaison) for going out. They went out and met with the landowner. Russ went out and looked at the stones, confirmed the archaeological and historical significance.”

HISTORY: Water is used to contrast the symbols on Turkey Track Rock in Macon County. The history for the site of these carvings in soapstone boulders dates back more than 5,000 years.

Human Resources ordinance tabled again

SCOTT MCKIE B.P.
ONE FEATHER STAFF

Legislation that would take the Division of Human Resources out from under the general purview of the tribal government of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians and form it into a separate entity was tabled by Tribal Council again this month. Ord. No. 60 (2017) was tabled during the regular Council session on Thursday, Sept. 6.

The ordinance states in part, “…there is a need to create an independent Division of Human Resources, which takes the politics out of the hiring, termination, demotion, promotion process to ensure the best candidate is selected for employment…”

Thursday’s discussion on the issue lasted nearly an hour.

“We’ve met and met and met on this,” EBCI Human Resources Secretary Tara Reed-Cooper said during Thursday’s discussion as she noted there have been several work sessions on the issue. “We all want to get the politics out of it.”

She added, “You’re going to keep the politics in it if you put it under TERO. You’re going to keep the politics in it if you put it under Council. You’re going to keep the politics in it if we answer to the Chief, Vice Chief, Council…”

Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed, who noted he would ratify the legislation if they passed it, cautioned Tribal Council to take their time with the legislation and to consider carefully all of the options. “I can understand, certainly, like everyone else, we want everything with the HR process to be done in order and in accordance with policy.”

He said out of the hundreds of authorization to hire forms signed off on by himself and Vice Chief Alan B. Ensley, there has been only one they disagreed on. “If you involve human beings in anything, there is a potential for politics. I’m not trying to dissuade you from doing it. I’m just asking you to at least consider where the oversight is going to come from. I think it needs more work because there’s all of these unanswered questions.”

Rep. French agreed with Chief Sneed. “At this time, I don’t think I can support it. It does need some more work, and I don’t want to rush things.”

He asked for Council representatives to attend the next work session and bring ideas for how to best solve the situation. “When we have a work session, they’re all important. That’s part of our job. That’s what we’re here for and are elected for. If we have another work session, let’s bring some solutions. Let’s get together and find some solutions and get this done right…”

Rep. Crowe gave one possible solution on Thursday. “Why don’t we do it similarly to the way the Boys Club does it? I’m not a big fan of having all the boards, but why don’t we have it to where they have an election of five tribal employees that will sit on the board that will oversee HR?”

Rep. Rose commented, “I just think we’re never, ever going to get politics out of the hiring. You never will unless you contract HR out. That’s the only way it’s going to be fair around here.”

When it came time for a vote, two moves – move to pass and a move to table - were voted against one another with 10 voting to table and Rep. Crowe and Wolltown Rep. Jeremy Wilson voting for passage.

The next work session on this legislation has not been scheduled as of press time.
Council passes changes to tribal drug court

JOSEPH MARTIN

It initially appeared to be a proposal to repeal the tribal drug court, but a substitute ordinance actually made for an easier process for addicted offenders to obtain treatment through the court system.

Tribal Council passed a proposal to change the section of Cherokee Code that provides for the drug court during its regular session on Thursday, Sept. 6, however, the same services to provide recovery will be provided by the courts. The changes passed by Council are intended to improve efficiency and effectiveness. The name of the drug court was changed to Tsu-Na-Ta-Ne-Ts’i-Tv-Sdi-Yi or Cherokee Wellness Court.

With a goal of encouraging sobriety among substance-addicted offenders, the drug court was established in 2009. It would offer treatment along with rewards and sanctions in an effort to fight addiction. The ordinance passed on Thursday would make the process to obtain treatment through the courts easier.

The initial proposal was to repeal the section of code that provided the drug court. “It wasn’t my intention to repeal the entire thing,” said Cherokee Chief Justice Kirk Saunooke. “It was a misstep on my part.”

With the substitute ordinance accepted by Council, the section of Cherokee Code was amended to read that the court would implement a comprehensive court program that blends treatment and sanction alternatives with rehabilitation while considering the safety of the community.

Vice Chairman David Wolfe spoke of the need to distinguish between the dealers and the users. He said many of the users need help, and he voiced support for combining rehabilitation with consequences. “Most of it was having to do with mental health, which leads to the drug problem.”

The court’s new name, translated from Cherokee, means, “Where they have a change of heart.” The court takes participants referred from the Cherokee Court once they’ve pleaded guilty or have been convicted of a crime related to drug abuse or addiction.

Rules of evidence won’t apply in this court, and any information obtained or disclosed will be confidential and exempt from public information disclosure, unless a judge orders disclosure. These are rules that pertain to burden of proof, admissibility, relevance, weight and sufficiency for criminal and civil proceedings.

“They need to be able to share with us whatever they want to share,” said Associate Judge Shannon Swimmer, who added that when the evidence rules aren’t followed, they can be more open. “We want it to be more of an easier interaction with the participants.”

Wolfe said, “My goal was to pool all the resources to get them the help they need.”

Swimmer said this would provide a more well-rounded approach. “That’s really what we’re trying to do.”

Tribal Council Chairman Adam Wachacha asked about ensuring that victims of crimes, such as breaking and entering, are getting a sense of justice through restitution. “Where’s the balance there? I know we want to help them, but yet still we want to help the ones who were taken from.”

Saunooke said it’s a balanced approach to try to help those who need it while making the victims whole.

North Carolina to issue specialty license plate for EBCI

The State of North Carolina currently offers 201 specialty license plates, from the 82nd Airborne to Zeta Phi Beta sorority, and soon there will be another. Members of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians will soon be able to purchase a North Carolina license plate specifically for them which contains the EBCI tribal seal.

“I am very proud to see this initiative come to fruition,” said Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed. “It was a long and arduous process advocating for the Eastern Band’s right to have our Tribe represented in this way. I am excited to start seeing these license plates in and around Cherokee. I would like to say a special thank you to Bill Taylor for his work on this project on behalf of the Eastern Band.”

The idea for the license plate was approved by Tribal Council in Res. No. 118 (2018), submitted by Chief Sneed, which outlined several legislative measures the Tribe is working on with the State of North Carolina. The North Carolina General Assembly approved the plate in House Bill 92 which was signed into law in June, and the plates will only be issuable to EBCI tribal members. Regular plate costs, established in G.S. (General Statute) 20-87 or G.S. 2088 will apply, but there will be no extra cost for the specialty plate.

The North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles has provided the EBCI with two options for the specialty plate, which have been approved by Chief Sneed. Upon receiving approval of the proofs, the DMV has stated these plates will be available for purchase with the presentation of an EBCI enrollment card in approximately four months.

The Principal Chief of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians is seeking to become the president of an organization representing 27 federally recognized tribes. Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed announced his candidacy for president of USET (United South and Eastern Tribes) on Thursday, Sept. 6 during the end of the regular Tribal Council meeting.

Council passed an emergency resolution at the end of the agenda nominating Chief Sneed for the president’s race and giving him their support. The resolution passed unanimously.

The election will occur during the USET SPF (Sovereignty Protection Fund) Annual Meeting at Harrah’s Cherokee Casino Resort Event Center on the morning of Oct. 9, 2017. He is vying for the office of USET president which will be decided at this year’s Annual Meeting which will be hosted by the Seneca Nation of Indians (New York) on Oct. 8-11.

Big Cove Rep. Perry Shell commented, “It is time for the original tribes to have a stronger voice... we need to have that voice.”

He added, “I hope that we have an opportunity to have more influence and a stronger voice in this, and I hope you win it.”

over time other tribes were added to the organization from the eastern seaboard and northeastern part of the United States. “The shift really went to the northern tribes, and there was not a lot of focus on things that were happening in the southeast. If you’re not familiar, the Eastern Band is really a very strong presence on all of the (USET) committees there. If you go to any of the break-out sessions or committees, the Eastern Band is leading in most of that. However, as far as the agenda for the organization and the direction that the organization is going, a lot of the focus still seems to be on the northeast and I just felt like we are a founding tribe, we are one of the driving forces in that organization, and should I win the election for the seat of president there, we would have a very strong voice for the direction of the organization and bringing it back to a more equitable distribution of power.”

BEAUTIFUL BIKES:

This bike was customized by Widowmaker Custom Design and Repair of Rougemont. It’s owned by Hank Thibodeau. It features an open belt primary and six speed, right-side drive. It was one of numerous bikes to make an appearance at the Second Annual Cherokee Blue Ridge Run, which in addition to showing custom bikes, also featured performances from Molly Hatchet and Mötley Crüe’s Vince Neil.
Tribal Council passed amendments to the Free Press Act, during its regular session on Thursday, Sept. 6, that granted protections for anonymous sources to the paper. The changes also remove the director of Marketing and Public Relations from the editorial board as the position and division no longer exist.

The timing of hearing the ordinance coincided with the New York Times’ running of an anonymous op-ed from a member of President Donald Trump’s administration. It also coincides with an unflattering book about Trump from Bob Woodward, the Pulitzer Prize-winning journalist of Watergate fame, who used an anonymous source to expose corruption in the Nixon administration. Painttown Rep. Tommye Saunooke said, “That was in the news all over the place this morning.”

Robert Jumper, One Feather editor, who submitted the proposed changes on behalf of the Editorial Board, was seeking to expand the protections of the Free Press Act and strengthen it. In addition to leaving the use of anonymous sources up to the editorial board, it also struck the requirement of review for approval of controversial material.

“The word controversial is an ambiguous word,” Jumper said. “It is our feeling that the Editorial Board should be a policy maker and that the editor and staff should be following the guidance of those policies.”

Sanctions for violations were also passed. Any incident of pressure or influence that threatens a staff member of the paper is required to be reported to the Tribe’s Office of Internal Audit and Ethics for review, investigation and recommendation.

It also adds appointments to the board for Tribal Council, the executive committee and a staff member of the Attorney General’s office. Some in Council questioned the indefinite appointments.

“We are much more concerned that we pull the politics back out from it,” Yellowhill Rep. Tom Wahnetah said. “You’re not ever going to get the politics out of it.” Wahnetah said that term limits could be set or reappointed. Council removed the word “indefinite” from the changes.

Vice Chairman David Wolfe also questioned the One Feather providing recommendations for the Council appointments. “I look at it as Tribal Council’s appointment. We’ll do that appointment on our own.”

Jumper said, “If you needed any assistance from us, we would provide it. If you don’t need it, then we won’t provide it.”

The use of anonymous sources for journalistic purposes is often used as a last resort, when verifying the story can happen no other way, and the story is highly newsworthy. The amended ordinance allows for such to happen on a case-by-case basis.

Big Cove Rep. Perry Shell, while asking for fairness in reporting, called upon any use of anonymously obtained information to be factually-based. “I think that it’s very important that whatever that anonymous source is, the facts of what they’re saying is reviewed at least three or four times to make sure that what is written is in fact, fact rather than their political view.”

Jumper replied, “We have the same concerns, and we want to make sure we are accurate and fair.”
FOOTBALL

Braves double Blues on rainy night

SCOTT MCKIE B.P.
ONE FEATHER STAFF

For such a wet and rainy night, Cherokee (2-1) and Asheville School (2-1) surely put up some big offensive numbers. The teams combined for close to 900 total yards of offense (Cherokee 525, Asheville School 370) and almost 80 points as the Braves topped the Blues 52-26 at Ray Kinsland Stadium on Friday, Sept. 7.

“You have to give them credit,” Kent Briggs, Braves head football coach, said of the Blues following the game. “They’re a good football team. They’ve got some really good players. Their quarterback was outstanding.”

Following a slow start in the first quarter, both teams got going in the second quarter and went into halftime with the Braves leading by six (24-18).

“We lost our leverage a little bit, but we got it back in the second half and came out and played with intensity,” Coach Briggs noted. “I knew this was going to be one of those games where we would have to go out and play to win, and that proved to be true. But, our guys responded at halftime and came out and played a really strong second half and kept the heat on them. I’m really proud of the win. We still have a lot of things to do to get better because we have a lot of tough teams down the road. We have a tough one next week, and plus we’re a little banged up so we’ll have to have the guys in the backup roles come through.”

Bobby Crowe, Braves junior quarterback, completed 14 of 18 passes for 287 yards and 2 touchdowns. His favorite target of the night was Blake Smith, senior wide receiver, who caught 5 passes for 153 yards and 2 touchdowns. On the ground, Isaiah Evans, senior running back, carried the ball 16 times for 137 yards and 2 touchdowns.

Asheville was led by Chris Hemphill, junior quarterback, who completed 5 of 17 passes for 81 yards and 1 interception. He also carried the ball 13 times for 96 yards and 2 touchdowns.

The first quarter of the game saw several punts and three-and-outs as both teams adjusted to the rainy conditions. Cherokee got on the board as Rocky Peebles, senior kicker, hit a 21-yard field goal midway through the quarter to put the Braves up 3-0 which is... how the quarter would end.

The second quarter had the most action in the game as both teams scored three times. The score fest started five seconds in as Evans ran for a 9-yard touchdown. Peebles added the extra point and Cherokee led 10-0. Less than two minutes later, Crowe connected with Smith on a 48-yard touchdown pass down the left sideline. Following Peebles’ point after, the Braves led 17-0 with 9:57 left in the half.

Asheville School got on the board a minute and a half later as Hemphill ran 17 yards for a score. The point-after attempt was blocked, and the Braves led 17-6.

The Blues would score two more times before the half. Hemphill ran for a 25-yard touchdown midway through the quarter, and he threw a 19-yard touchdown pass to Titus Morrison a minute later. Both two-point conversions failed, and Asheville School took a one-point (18-17) lead with 5:36 left in the second.

Cherokee would score once more in the half as Smith caught a 63-yard touchdown from Crowe. Peebles’ point-after kick made it 24-18. The Blues missed a field goal with just over a minute left in the half, and the Braves led by six at the break.

Cherokee scored twice in the third on a 29-yard run by Evans and a 49-yard interception return by Cade Mintz, junior defensive back. Peebles added both point-after kicks, and the Braves led 38-18 at the end of the third.

The Braves added two more scores at the beginning of the fourth as Terence Ledford, senior running back, ran for two touchdowns (2 yards, 32 yards). Darius Lambert, senior kicker, came in and added both point-after kicks to make it 52-18.

The Blues scored once more in the contest as Uchenna Ikwuakor, senior running back, ran for a 37-yard touchdown. He also ran for the two-point conversion to make it 52-26 which is how the game would end.

Asheville was led defensively by Ikwuakor with 10 tackles. Cherokee’s defensive statistics have not been received as of the publishing of this article online. If they are received prior to press time, this article will be updated.

Following three home games to start their 2018 campaign, the Braves take the show on the road to Smoky Mountain (3-0) on Friday, Sept. 14.

COLLIDE: Cherokee’s Cade Mintz (#10), Braves junior defensive back, tackles Asheville School’s Titus Morrison.

BULLDOZER: Cherokee’s Sterling Santa Maria (#32), Braves junior wide receiver, runs over an Asheville School defender during Friday’s game. On the night, he caught 3 passes for 77 yards.
Cherokee students learn about human body, healthy lifestyle

Almost one in three (30.9 percent) of North Carolina youth between the ages of 10-17 are considered overweight or obese. The Tarheel state ranks 25th in the country for that rate according to the State of Obesity report released last year by the Trust for America’s Health and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

In an effort to combat childhood obesity, Cherokee Elementary School and New Kituwah Academy students learned about the human body in an exhibit called Speedway to Healthy which was set up in the Chief Joyce Dugan Cultural Arts Center on Sept. 5-6. The 1,200 square foot exhibit, which has sections representing the major organs and systems of the human body, was created as a 4-H Youth Development Cooperative Extension project courtesy of North Carolina A&T State University.

“We hope to show to the kids that healthy eating affects every organ in the body and to show how it affects the organs in the body,” said Janet Owle, EBCI Cooperative Extension agent, who was responsible for bringing the exhibit to Cherokee.

The Speeding to Healthy exhibit is free of charge to schools, and this particular exhibit was set up the day before by EBCI Facilities Management and participants in the Mother Town Healing Project. The exhibit itself was staffed by tribal and area health officials. “It’s all volunteer-based.” said Owle.

Owle worked with the SHAC (Student Health Advisory Council) at Cherokee Central Schools to bring the exhibit to the campus. Kelly Canaday, Cherokee SHAC coordinator, noted that the group is trying to take a more moderate approach now in relation to health choices. “We want to take a more moderate approach now in relation to health choices. We want to target people where they’re at and not chastise them for the way they eat. We want to educate them about the types of foods that they’re eating and let them know that there are moderate alternatives.”

Canaday said that slight, simple changes to a diet can make a big difference. “They don’t have to completely change their diet. They can still go out to eat. They can still hit a fast food restaurant, but it’s more about choices and moderat-tion – having a little bit every now and again instead of having a lot every day. Targeting the kids with that helps bring that educational component home. They start asking questions of mom and dad and start questioning some of those lifestyle choices.”

She said that a program like Speedway to Healthy that targets students from Kindergarten to fifth grade is very timely. “It is really a good idea to catch the young ones before those habits are developed or as they’re developing and letting them know that there are other choices other than what’s always put in front of them.”

Dr. Michael Murray, Cherokee Central Schools superintendent, commented on the program, “What we’re doing is bringing science alive by integrating it in a hands-on approach. To build engagement in the classroom, it’s critical to make sure that you just don’t read it out of a book, that you participate in it, you see how it ties into your every day.”

A former science teacher, he further said, “I’m extremely excited about today. It’s bringing science to life for a lot of kids.”

Dr. Murray said the event also gave an opportunity for collaboration. “We are excited that we invited New Kituwah Academy because, truthfully, those are our kids too. As a school leader, I’m excited to extend the invitation to make sure that they participate in events like this with us because we truly feel like they’re our children and we want them to be part of things that we are doing.”

Canaday noted that everyone in the community is welcome to become active with SHAC which meets every second Wednesday of the month at 3:15 pm in the Chief Joyce Dugan Cultural Arts Center gallery.

Enrollment applications received after this date and time will not be considered for the December 2018 distribution.

An application will only be considered complete with a county or state certified birth certificate, certified DNA results, and certification of all other Indian blood. To schedule an appointment at the local collection site, call Michelle Stiles 359-6463. Out-of-town applicants may contact Amber Harrison (918) 685-0478 to schedule an appointment in your area.

DNA testing must be collected by Thursday, Aug. 30 in order for the results to be in by Sept. 17. Any DNA collected after this date is not guaranteed to be returned by the deadline. Thank you letters

Thanks Yogi Crowe Scholarship Fund

I am writing to thank the Richard (Yogi) Crowe Memorial Scholarship Fund for awarding me funding for this fall. I am excited to be entering my final year as a Ph.D. student in Sport Management at the University of Tennessee. I have had a great experience with the program and look forward to continuing my research and contribute to our Native American community. I have been lucky enough to conduct research in Cherokee on the game of stickball and look forward to sharing my work with the community in the form of a documentary that we started last fall. I will also continue to teach this fall and I love promoting and representing our tribe to the undergraduates at UT.

I will be doing my dissertation on Native American athletes giving back to their community and in addition to a traditional written dissertation I am going to attempt to create a documentary film to share with the public that showcases Native athletes. It is important to me to provide a video representation of these athletes and illustrate the important work they do connecting to their community. I do not think I would be able to pursue this project if it were not for the support of the Richard (Yogi) Crowe Memorial Scholarship Fund.

I look forward to making the fund proud and sharing my experiences with others who are considering continuing their education. I encourage anyone to reach out if they have any questions about my research or want advice about higher education.

The people take a step forward

ROBERT JUMPER
ONE FEATHER EDITOR

It was a good day in Tribal Council yesterday (Thursday, Sept. 6) for the press and the people. Your right to free speech was endorsed by your legislature in the form of substantive changes to the Cherokee Code regarding the Cherokee One Feather and the Free Press Act. In the Sept. 6 session, the Tribal Council approved changes to ordinances that were long on ambiguity and short on substance. Words like “controversial” and “due” were removed to clearly state in our law that any influence by politicians into the reporting of the Cherokee One Feather is unacceptable and that the editor, working within guidelines established by the Editorial Board, will have the latitude to edit the paper without concern for what controversy might develop from reporting the facts and documenting community and government activities.

A fundamental right of privacy was acknowledged by the Tribal Council with the addition of protection of anonymous sources written into law. With this new ordinance, the One Feather may not be compelled to release the names of sources who may be concerned about retribution. We previously had to advise whistleblowers that the One Feather had no authority under tribal law to withhold their names if government directed us to release it. This meant that people had to expose themselves to retaliation if they chose to provide the newspaper with information. The people now have a law to protect them from exposure when they want to report corruption. This is another critical step in getting transparency in government.

And, the Tribal Council approved an overhaul of the makeup of the Cherokee One Feather Editorial Board. The new Board will include a representative each selected from the community by Tribal Council and the Executive Office and a member designated by the Office of the Attorney General. This will provide voices from the community who will have an active role in making Cherokee One Feather policy. Each member of the One Feather staff sits on the Board as well.

Once ratified by the Principal Chief, this legislation will be the most significant upgrade to the media laws of the Tribe since 2009. Earlier in the year, Principal Chief Richard G. Sneed deemed an Executive Order that had been invoked against the One Feather to prevent the One Feather from publishing a “Cherokee Rants and Raves” column and prohibited the use of anonymously submitted material to be invalid and expired. In his opinion, Chief Sneed stated that his understanding of the law was that Executive Orders died with the administration that created it. He has many times expressed his view that the press should not be interfered with by government apart from violation of the law.

While there are still many battles to fight to ensure that the Principal People have a free and unfettered press, it is important to celebrate this important milestone. We all can remember days here at the One Feather that government influence shut down our social media and web presence, and fear kept reporting to a minimum. At one point, the paper was even directed by a supervisor not to cover Tribal Council sessions in person and the editorial leadership so afraid of repercussions that they would veto a story rather than risk any supervisory chastisement or discipline.

We hope to work with the Executive Office, Tribal Council, and all government entities in providing this community and the readership with insightful commentary, unbiased reporting, and the tools you need to form well-founded opinions and make sound judgments about day-to-day living and casting votes that will continue to change the face of your leadership and future.

The vote to approve these ordinance changes was unanimous. Every Council member affirmed the need for strengthening the law to distance political influence from the press.

Big Cove Rep. Perry Shell stated, “This is very important
Keep the information flowing

JOSEPH MARTIN

Tribal Code defines what is and isn’t public information. The purpose of the law is important.

“The Tribe finds that it is vital in a democratic society that public business be performed in an open and public manner. Toward this end, provisions of this Article must be construed so as to make it possible for members of the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians, or their representatives, to have access to public records at a minimum cost and with minimum delay to the persons seeking access.”

It continues: “Members and their representatives have a right to know the basis of the formulation of public policy. Therefore, it is the public policy of this Tribe that members shall be advised of the performance of public officials and of the decisions that are reached in public activity.”

Newspapers, including the One Feather, serve as a fourth estate, one designed to hold elected officials accountable and to keep constituents informed about government operations. For this to work, the press needs access to information, through laws, which clearly establish guidelines as to what is accessible.

Having laws to provide that access is one thing. Getting access is another, and for this publication at times, that has been a challenge. Whether its lack of knowledge of the law or a refusal to comply, this is an issue that needs correcting.

Here is some of what tribal entities can exempt from disclosure:

• trade secrets;
• information that could constitute an invasion of privacy;
• matters specifically exempted by law;
• contractual arrangements;
• casino financial records;
• juvenile records.

Of course for publication purposes, much of what is exempted is information for which this publication would have little use.

However, here’s what is of value to this publication, and the public as well:

• arrest records;
• outcomes and details of court cases, civil or criminal;
• legislation introduced and considered by Tribal Council and the Chiefs, regardless of status, and a vote count of who voted and how and whether the Chief ratified or killed it;
• sex offender registry;
• individuals who’ve been banished from tribal lands.

The problems this publication has encountered with obtaining public information have been with getting access in the first place, getting timely access and getting information without being charged a fee that exceeds the cost of providing the information. This needs to change.

Access to information benefits everyone, and the Tribe’s public records law is a good law. It provides a good working relationship with the media, and it better enables the media to provide fair and accurate news coverage. Whatever the issue, the media knows there are two sides. It wants to tell both sides. Access allows it to tell both sides. This publication works to be fair and accurate. It works with tribal entities to get the story right and provide both sides. All tribal entities should work to comply with the law and work with this publication to provide access to what is public record and release what information the law allows. In the end, this publication and the tribal entities are all working for the same people.

On a side note, we have talked about how dangerous traffic is in our downtown area regarding pedestrian travel. I don’t usually advocate for you reading other newspapers, but, if you have the opportunity, peek at this week’s edition of the Sylva Herald & Ruralite. Quintin Ellison has an excellent photo essay and story about the issues the town is having with both vehicular traffic ignoring pedestrians in crosswalks and pedestrians jaywalking at their peril throughout main street. The town police did a multi-day sting operation to catch drivers being too free with the gas pedal with walkers were in front of them. In a few hours on one day, they wrote 20 citations and over the course of the sting, over 100 citations. Sounds like stats from the movie “Death Race 2000”.

Trump and Metamucil...

Observations and random thoughts
Volume 2018 1.7

WILLIAM LEDFORD

We've lost two giants in the last couple of weeks as both Aretha Franklin, “The Queen of Soul”, and Senator John McCain have both walked on. Both are the kind of people that only pass through our lives once. We will miss them.

In the world of music, Aretha Franklin was incomparable and the divas out there today couldn’t hold a candle to her abilities. As time marches on, we’re going to say farewell to other singers with the kinds of voices that all of the effects and studios tweaks can’t imitate such as Carol King, Patti Labelle, or Linda Ronstadt. Kids today listen to performers called Beyonce or Cardi B or Kesha and with all of the studio tricks used their listeners wouldn’t know what real talent is. Too bad. Good music is lost on the youth. In the world of politics, John McCain was head and shoulders above the sort of swamp dweller that now haunts the hallways of the Senate and House of Representatives. When he voted for or created legislation he had the people of the United States on his mind, not just his political party. He refused to vote party simply to vote party and ruffled feathers in doing so. He was a man of honor and principal with genuine class and we’ll never see his like in Congress again. Me, I liked him simply because he wouldn’t kiss Trump’s butt and that ticked the big orange baby off. No “glute smooshing” here.

Observation: Has anyone ever noticed that in every photo op involving world leaders and chairs, President Trump sits near the edge of the chair like he’s sitting on the great, white, porcelain throne taking a big ol’…err…waiting patiently for the Metamucil to kick in. The person next to him, Macron, Merkel, Putin, whomever, all sit relaxed and comfortable, kinda like they’re in a chair? Maybe that posture is comfortable for him. Maybe that’s where all of the texting occurs. I dunno, puts my legs to sleep sitting like that. No wonder he’s always angry on Twitter. LeBron James was on the Don Lemon show which airs on CNN a while back to talk about his participation in the opening of the I Promise School in Akron, Ohio for underprivileged and disadvantaged children. Naturally Trump, who insists that he doesn’t watch CNN, stated on Twitter that he saw the interview on CNN (???) and proceeded to make insulting remarks regarding the intelligence of these two black men. LeBron, demonstrating remarkable restraint that is a hallmark of intelligence, proceeded to “burn” Trump by stating that he’s putting children in schools, not cages.

Colin Kaepernick was voted as one of the faces of Nike’s new sales campaign and the uproar began. White folks stirred up by Trump burned the shoes and apparel they had purchased and posted the burning on social media. I think that it’s funny to purchase something and burn it. You’re hurting no one but your own wallet. I myself have never worn anything Nike but I think I’ll go buy some now. Native people know that Colin Kaepernick has stood with us with support and we’ll return that support.

Trump, as we know, has been very vocal regarding what he and Stephen Miller call “chain migration”. In other words, the relatives of someone who has obtained a “green card” being granted legal status due to that “green card”. Melania Trumps’ parents were just granted legal status. Stephen Millers grandparents were also chain migrants but all have one thing in common. They came here from Europe, not the “$%thole countries” Trump rails about. The hypocrisy is hip-deep in Trumpland.

There was a recent editorial and then a letter from a concerned citizen in the One Finger regarding voting in elections off the Rez. If you know me you know that I totally agree with this. Voting is important. Very important. If you don’t believe me look at what staying home and not voting resulted in last November. He’s orange, he’s in way over his head, most of his advisers are idiots and yes men and his sons are retard…they are not bright. And, because he didn’t get to buy into Indian Gaming way back when, still hates Natives. Fact. He’s doomed. Just a matter of time.

I had a thought. Someone on the Rez should start a ride-sharing service. And, since Uber is taken the service could be called Guber. All of the drivers would be Guber-drivers. Whatcha think?

LETTER TO THE EDITORS

Tribal member supports community policing

New officers that are taught bad culture or habits by others that was taught to them isn’t good. Getting out of a patrol vehicle to do foot patrol is part of the job. It’s called community policing. Having officers eat their breakfast after our children have gotten to school safely would be good too instead of them gathering at a restaurant with others while children are making their way to school.

Suggestion for syringe issue

We all agree there are used syringes out in the community, and we are getting kiosks. Why couldn’t we have a program that required the people incarcerated from drug charges to go out in the community and pick them up? It would work the same way as the inmate trash pick-up program. All they would need is supervision, tongs, and a sharps container.

This would accomplish a couple of things. It would get the syringes out of the community, and it would give people a chance to see the consequences of throwing them in the playgrounds, cemeteries, etc.

HOW TO STAY SAFE WHEN A HURRICANE THREATENS

Prepare NOW

- Know your area's risk of hurricanes.
- Sign up for your community's warning system. The Emergency Alert System (EAS) and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) Weather Radio also provide emergency alerts.
- If you are at risk for flash flooding, watch for signs such as heavy rain.
- Practice going to a safe shelter for high winds, such as a FEMA safe room or ICC 500 storm shelter. The next best protection is a small, interior, windowless room in a sturdy building on the lowest level that is not subject to flooding.
- Based on your location and community plans, make your own plans for evacuation or sheltering in place.
- Become familiar with your evacuation zone, the evacuation route, and shelter locations.
- Gather needed supplies for at least three days. Keep in mind each person's specific needs, including medication. Don't forget the needs of pets.
- Keep important documents in a safe place or create password-protected digital copies.

Survive DURING

- If told to evacuate, do so immediately. Do not drive around barricades.
- If sheltering during high winds, go to a FEMA safe room, ICC 500 storm shelter, or a small, interior, windowless room or hallway on the lowest floor.
- If trapped in a building by flooding, go to the highest level of the building. Do not climb into a closed attic. You may become trapped by rising flood water.
- Listen for current emergency information and instructions.
- Use a generator or other gasoline-powered machinery ONLY outdoors and away from windows.
- Do not walk, swim, or drive through flood waters. Turn Around. Don't Drown. Just six inches of fast-moving water can knock you down, and one foot of moving water can sweep your vehicle away.
- Stay off bridges over fast-moving water.

Be Safe AFTER

- Listen to authorities for information and special instructions.
- Be careful during clean-up. Wear protective clothing and work with someone else.
- Do not touch electrical equipment if it is wet or if you are standing in water. If it is safe to do so, turn off electricity at the main breaker or fuse box to prevent electric shock.
- Avoid wading in flood water, which can contain dangerous debris. Underground or downed power lines can also electrically charge the water.
- Save phone calls for emergencies. Phone systems are often down or busy after a disaster. Use text messages or social media to communicate with family and friends.
- Document any property damage with photographs. Contact your insurance company for assistance.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) That new workplace problem should be dealt with as soon as possible. Leaving it unresolved for too long could lead to an even more unsettling and time-consuming situation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to do some fancy juggling to keep both your work responsibilities and personal obligations on track. But ultimately, you’ll work it all out, as you always do.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might hear some upsetting things about a situation in your life. But don’t be swayed by talk. Demand proof before making any decisions on the matter.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Don’t risk depleting those precious energy levels by taking on more tasks than you can realistically handle. Also, remember to ask for help when you need it.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It might be difficult for the Aquarian who is used to giving advice to take counsel when offered. But it’s a good idea to listen to what trusted friends feel you should know.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things might be a little unsettled as you move through a period of reassembly. But once you get your priorities sorted out, you should be ready to tackle an important decision.

BORN THIS WEEK: You’re able to achieve a happy balance in your productive life by never feeling overwhelmed or underappreciated.
I hope everyone received a copy of the 2017 Annual Report.

Additional copies are available at the Tribal Council House.
